Anti-Zionists Request U. S. To Oppose Jewish State

Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the American Council of Judaism, released the text of a letter to the State Department requesting the United States government to express its opposition to any proposal involving "establishment of a Jewish State."

The letter asserts that the establishment of a Jewish State would constitute an "unwarranted grievous injury" to Americans of Jewish faith who oppose the Zionist movement. It is addressed to Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State.

Mr. Rosenwald's letter protests current British plans to select representatives for a conference Sept. 9 on the Palestine problem only from the Jewish Agency in Palestine. It states his organization—composed of "American citizens of the Jewish faith"—feels the Jewish Agency is spokesman of only those Jews associated with the Zionist movement, but that it "can not and does not represent those Jews who are profoundly concerned about their co-religionists but who are fundamentally opposed to the Zionist program."

Mr. Rosenwald wrote that to set up a Jewish state would imply a "special relationship of all Jews" to it and would threaten to have a "deleterious effect upon the present political status" of Jews in countries in which they now are equal citizens.

He asserted that the political identification of all Jews of the world with a Jewish state, if established, "is bound to have harmful consequences upon all Jews who are completely integrated in the various countries of which they are loyal citizens and in which they propose to remain as [illegible]

He claimed as an example that if a Jewish state were set up, American Jews would be associated "in ways incompletely defined yet unmistakable" with another nation possessing sovereign powers, and added that the political identification of all Jews with such a state "merely because of their religious affiliation" cannot be ruled out by declarations to the contrary.

In conclusion, Mr. Rosenwald asked the State Department to forward to Great Britain the following views:

(1) That the Jewish Agency be recognized as speaking only for those who are Zionist or pro-Zionist and "as having no right to speak for Jews who are not supporters of the Jewish nationalist philosophy of Zionism."

(2) That the proposal for a Jewish state "is a matter of profound concern to all Jews all over the world whose status will be seriously affected by the establishment of a Jewish state" and that spokesmen for Jews opposing a Jewish state be given an opportunity to express their views.

Jews To Help Manpower Shortage In France

Some 1,000 Jews fleeing from Poland and from displaced-persons' camps in Germany have crossed the French border illegally in the past several weeks and have taken up temporary residence in Paris and the provinces under the tolerant eye of the government.

A spokesman for the Ministry of the Interior said that it would be difficult for the Government to stop the clandestine entry of the displaced Jews who are determined not to spend another winter in the jammed and inadequate camps in Germany and of the Jews who have come directly from Poland into France, which they consider a natural route for escape from Europe.

It was said, however, that as long as the number involved [illegible]

The few that want to stay in France could be assimilated while the vast majority who desire to leave for North and South America, Palestine and other places will merely be made part of the quota of approximately 60,000 that the Government has established as the maximum number allowed to stay while awaiting visas. However, private relief organizations in France fear that the number of illegal entries will vastly increase as winter nears and they are already making preparations to care for the influx. If the number gets out of hand, the Ministry's spokesman said, the Government will be forced to adopt stern control measures.

Kept Hours In Hot Sun Without Food Or Water

More than 100 men and women were detained from 4 a.m. to almost midday, on August 26, most of the time in the blazing sun, without food or water, as troops with magnetic mine detectors and "metal-sniffing" dogs searched houses and farm buildings in a search for three Jews who had swum out to the transport Empire Heywood in Haifa's harbor and blown a hole in the vessel, which was used to transfer unauthorized Palestine immigrants to Cyprus.

Trained dogs were employed by the Second Brigade of the First Infantry Division in the village, Sadoth Yam, a settlement of young Jewish fishermen south of Haifa, writes Julian Louis Meltzer, New York Times correspondent.

The three saboteurs were members of the Jewish resistance movement. They were called "frog men" by journalists in Palestine as they emulated the tactics of Italian "commandos" who had tried to blow up British warships in the Alexandria harbor during the war.

All the men and boys in the village were taken from their homes, placed in barbed-wire cages and then "identified" singly by Hebrew-speaking British policemen. Most of the men had recently been released after their arrest June 30 in another military search.

A party of newspaper men was taken from Jerusalem to the fisherman's village—its name means Sea Fields—to watch the operation.

The search and the identifying process continued until late at night. It was the first full-scale military operation in the Jewish press since the July 29 action in Tel Aviv.

Court Orders New York Klan To Quit

Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein, of New York, announced that upon his application Justice Joseph A. Cavagan, of Supreme Court, ordered the dissolution of the Knights and Women of the Ku-Klux-Klan, Inc., in New York State.

The roster of its 1,100 members, said the Attorney General, has been turned over the Federal Bureau of Investigation for possible assistance in its national inquiry.

The story of the N. Y. Klan's organization, operations and membership, the Attorney General disclosed, was obtained by an undercover agent of Mr. Goldstein's office, who, under the assumed name of "Mr. Bauer", insinuated himself into the confidence of the leaders and wheedled their secrets from them.

Mr. Goldstein declined to make public the klan membership list at this time, explaining that a preliminary survey indicated that many whose names were carried on the roster as still members had withdrawn from its ranks long ago. Publication of the list without a thorough weeding out, he added, would cause injustices.

However, the names of the three dominating officials of the four units found in the metropolitan area—including the five boroughs of the city and Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk Counties — were cited by the Attorney General in his dissolution papers.

"Important and startling information" about the Ku Klux Klan, including plans for joint anti-American activity by leaders of the Klan and the defunct German-American Bund from 1941 to this year, was obtained by Assistant Attorney General Daniel Duke, of Georgia, during a visit in New York, to gather evidence for his Federal Court case to revoke the national charter of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia. He reported on the results of his trip at two interviews, one at the offices of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, 185 West Forty-ninth Street; the other in a joint interview with Mr. Goldstein, the Attorney General.

Find United States Army Care Of Refugees Good

Representatives of five Jewish Agencies returned to Paris from a survey of United States Army camps for displaced persons in Germany and praised the Army's handling of the problem and the contribution of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration to the aid of homeless refugees.

The members of the group were Dr. Stephan S. Wise, president of the World Jewish Congress; Dr. Nahum Goldman, a member of the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine; Jacob Blaustein, chairman of the executive committee of the American Jewish Committee; Judge Philip Forman, a director of the American Joint Distribution Committee; and I. L. Kenen, formerly of Toronto, Ont., now executive secretary of the American Jewish Conference.

"We are deeply grateful," their joint statement said, "that the American Army is permitting these unfortunate people to find shelter in the American zone."

It is understood that the group was favorably impressed with the attitude of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Germany, toward the entire problem. Hopes were expressed by Jewish sources here that as many as 100,000 Jews would soon flee Poland and find sanctuary in the American zone of Germany.

While it agreed that the Army and UNRRA had done their utmost to meet the problem, the group stressed the urgency of a more lasting solution. "It is imperative that action must be taken without delay," the statement said, "to [illegible] victims of persecution

Jews In Cyprus Camps

Refugee camps at Cyprus have high barbed wire fences, with observation towers and searchlights, guarded by armed soldiers, and these surroundings remind the Jews of Nazi concentration camps in Europe.

The British created virtual panic in one camp when they issued an order for the Jews to turn in their watches and cigarette lighters. They immediately thought of the gas chambers in Europe, for it was normal Nazi procedure to strip their victims of valuables before executing them.

The British explained, however, that they merely wanted to prevent the internees from bartering their valuables for cigarettes from Cyprus workers around the camp.

Water is hauled to the camps in huge tank trucks. Families are kept together in groups of ten, while single immigrants are interned separately.

The camp now is quarantined and no unauthorized persons can visit it, but authorities said they hoped to be able to lift the ban soon and permit local Jewish committees to bring the internees delicacies and other comforts.

There are 120 expectant mothers among the internees. A baby clinic has been established and fresh milk is being distributed to those who need it. An army doctor still is in charge of the camp but he is being helped by doctors among the internees.

M. V. Spearway, acting Government liaison officer, said questioning of the refugees disclosed that there are six women nurses among their number, as well as one gynecologist and a neurologist. A woman dentist also was found and she has started working with Army field dental equipment.

The refugees said they had sufficient to eat and drink and had been well-treated except for their first contact with the British, when they refused to leave the blockade runner Fenice for the British transport, Empire Heywood.

The British turned water hoses on them and threw tear gas bombs among them before they made the move, they said. Once aboard the Heywood they were issued dry shoes and clothing.

On the landing craft that transported them from the harbor to

U.S. Zionists Stand By Leader, Cable Huge Sum To Palestine

After an all-night closed session the national executive of the Zionist Organization of America unanimously reaffirmed its confidence in the leadership of its president, Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, in the current Palestine crisis.

The resolution also termed "tendentious and harmful" the recent press dispatches from Paris in connection with Dr. Silver's reported submission of his resignation from the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. The resolution rejected "the imputation conveyed that Dr. Silver and the masses of American Zionists whom he leads represent an 'extremist' position in contrast with the allegedly 'moderate' position of the Jewish Agency executive."

The resolution, rejecting the "equally unwarranted suggestion that he or we are motivated by anti-British sentiment," added:

"We declare that the Zionist Organization of America stands today, as it has consistently stood, by the official program of the Zionist movement calling for the free entry of Jews into Palestine and the establishment of Palestine as a Jewish Commonwealth, with full equality of right and status for all its inhabitants. This program, adopted and ratified by the highest instances of the world Zionist movement, has been approved by the overwhelming majority of American Jewry, and has gained wide support among the American people and at the hands of the Congress of the United States; nor has that official Zionist position been reversed or modified by any world Zionist conference or Zionist congress empowered to make valid decisions touching basic Zionist policy and principles."

The announcement said that the session, "held behind closed doors, was devoted to a detailed discussion of recent political developments and to receiving confidential reports of the session of the Jewish Agency executive held in Paris, rendered by Dr. Israel Goldstein, former ZOA president who just returned from overseas."

The announcement added that Dr. Silver had attended the meeting and presented a confidential statement on his position and his views regarding the Zionist situation. "He had not attended the sessions of the Jewish Agency in Paris because of urgent Zionist duties which required his presence in Washington," the announcement said.

Five million dollars was sent to Jerusalem, the largest single remittance for the upbuilding of Palestine in the history of the American Zionist movement, Judge Morris Rothenberg, president of the Jewish National Fund of America, announced.

The money was cabled to the Zionist land-acquisition and reclamation agency, for the purchase of new land areas to establish agricultural settlements for Jewish survivors from Europe. At the organization's headquarters, 41 East Forty-second Street, New York, Judge Rothenberg issued the following statement:

"The Jewish National Fund of America has forwarded to [illegible] time the sum of $5,000,000.

IN MEMORIAM

COBLENTZ: In loving memory of Morris Samuel Coblentz, who passed away September 8, 1944.

Two lonely years have passed
Since our great sorrow fell;
The shock that we received that day,
We still remember well.
His smiling face and pleasant ways
Are a pleasure to recall,
We never knew what pain he had;
We did not see him die;
We only knew he passed away,
And could not say goodbye.

Sadly missed by his wife; daughter, Ruth; daughter, Helen, and son-in-law, Gordon Endleman; son Max, and daughter-in-law Sarah; and grandchildren.

GIRL GRAPPLES WITH ENRAGED BULL TO SAVE FATHER FROM TERRIBLE DEATH

SYLVETTE GAGNON WINS

Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD

[illegible] a division for [illegible] children, [illegible] appreciation of [illegible] act, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of [illegible] and radio [illegible]

At his St. Bruno, Que. farm, Arthur Gagnon was quietly doing his chores. Suddenly, for some reason, a bull became aroused . . . and before Gagnon knew what was happening, the beast was upon him — head lowered, deadly horns jabbing ferociously.

Cornered, the former fought desperately. But it was a losing battle . . . and he was almost ready to give up when his daughter Sylvette rushed in . . . grabbed the bull by the nose-ring and, using every ounce of strength she could muster, held the mad animal's head up until neighbours, hearing her screams, came to the rescue. The bull was killed immediately . . . and, thanks to his daughter's heroic action, Gagnon's life was saved.

We are proud to honour this gallant Canadian girl through the presentation of The Dow Award.

The recipe for Danish Pastry, given by Mrs. N. H. Godins, 4984 Lacombe Avenue, Montreal, which appeared in the Canadian Jewish Review on August 30, omitted to say that after the dough has risen the first time, until it is soft and puffy, it is rolled out, spread with butter; and sugar; then cinnamon, or raisins, if desired; and then, when it is shaped as desired, it is allowed to rise until each piece is double in size. Then powdered sugar is sprinkled on each piece, and the pastry is baked as directed.

Recipes for economical, time-saving, nourishing dishes are wanted. Please share!

Canadian Jews Sign Submission to Peace Confrence for First Time

Saul Hayes, national executive director, Canadian Jewish Congress, returned from the peace conference at Paris, having visited Britain and Sweden. At a press conference in Montreal, he said that it was the view of all the representatives of the Jewish organizations at Paris that Jews in many countries in Europe have a very strong sense of insecurity. He quoted as an example the statements of representatives of the Jews of Rumania and Hungary who felt that without effective international guarantees the clauses written into peace treaties, assuring Jews just treatment, would be of little value.

Mr. Hayes warned against a doctrinary approach to the complex problems of European Jews. He said that conditions vary from country to country, and representatives of the Jewish organizations at Paris took this fully into consideration in drafting their submissions. Congress representatives participated fully in the discussions, and for the first time in history were signatories of a submission to a peace conference.

La Guardia Chides U.S. For Not Admitting Unrepatriables

When Director General F. H. La Guardia of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announced the release of British Lieutenant General Sir Frederick E. Morgan as chief of U. N. R. R. A.'s displaced persons operations in Germany, and appointment of Meyer Cohen, director of U. N. R. R. A. repatriation in Washington, as acting chief succeeding Morgan, he also advocated, at a press conference, that the United States allow immigration of 100,000 to 120,000 refugees and announced plans to speed the return of many displaced persons to their homelands.

He praised Morgan—storm center of a controversy last January over the British general's remarks on a Jewish "exodus" — for his work and declared he was "one of the war's great soldiers and contributed greatly to victory."

His plan for an extensive reorganization of the basis for handling the D. P. problem, which, he said, has been submitted to the United States as well as other participating Governments, involves considerable shifting of personnel to meet the new situation. This, he implied, was an important factor in the decision to release General Morgan.

His hope, he emphasized, is to obtain from the American Government some relaxation of the immigration laws that will provide for the admission of 100,000 to 120,000 unrepatriable persons. This, he predicted, would stimulate similar action elsewhere in the world to absorb stateless persons on a pro rata basis, thus providing the ultimate solution for the dilemma.

"My own country," he added dryly, "has shed more tears and passed more resolutions on this subject than any other, but to date we have not taken these people in."

His hope is, he explained, to persuade the Governments, especially Poland and Yugoslavia, to send representatives into the displaced persons installations in Germany to convince the inmates that they will receive good treatment and risk no dangers if they decide to return to their homelands. Answering a question, he declared that he knew of no barrier to the circulation of newspapers of these countries in the camps. But he specified that he had no intention of including Polish Jews in such a repatriation program. As for Balts, he said:

"I do not think Balts will go back. Therefore, we must face that problem as it is."

Out of some 820,000 D.P.'s, Mr. La Guardia estimated, probably 450,000 may be considered repatriable, but the remainder must be tagged as eligible for resettlement in various countries.

Brazil, he said, has an ambitious program, contemplating the acceptance of about 100,000 stateless persons over a period of years, and other countries must accept similar responsibilities if a solution is to be found. With some heat, Mr. La Guardia countered a question as to whether the United States zone in Germany was being made a scapegoat for the support of thousands of infiltrees barred from other occupied areas, with the American taxpayers at home footing the costs.

Americans, he assured the questioner, should go down on their knees and thank God that their nation was spared the devastation of war experienced by British and other Allies and also that they have the wherewithal to pay.

"Of course, we are paying 72 per cent of the UNRRA budget," he conceded, "but, remember, assessments are on the basis of only 1 per cent of the national income. We have the largest income and, therefore, we pay the major share. You should thank Providence that we can."

He further dismissed as highly improbable a suggestion that the unrestricted hospitality encountered by the infiltrees in the American zone would stimulate an even greater influx of eastern Europeans into the United States territory in Germany as future candidates for resettlement.

And, contrary to well-established evidence, he declared he had never heard of incidents involving several return trips to Poland by D. P.'s, each time escorting one or more relatives to shelter in Landsberg, Munich or other centres operated by American funds.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

DR. BAKER'S COLUMN
Edited by Dr. Charles H. Baker, B.V.Sc.

HINTS

There is much satisfaction to be had out of the ownership of an obedient, well-trained dog, and although the Shepherd has in his nature an instinct to guard and to attack, he has a compensating intelligence with which a wise owner can do much. The aggressive instinct should be curbed in puppyhood.

The puppy should not be punished for misdemeanors until he is at least three months old. Before that he does not understand what he has done that might be wrong.

This advertisement is approved and endorsed by THE SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

"The Seeing Eye" A dog reflects his owner. The dog is what man makes him. The Shepherd or Alsatian has always been the screen's topflight canine actor. He is the leader of the blind—"The Seeing Eye"—and Dog of War par excellence.

The Shepherd can be trained to attack on sight or can be moulded into the owner's loyal and gentle friend. Kindness to animals begins with understanding. Understanding brings out the best in dogs as well as people.

Palestine A Pawn Of Power Politics

The Christian Century says:

Behind the headlines on Palestine is the struggle between the Big Three for power in the Middle East. That struggle is concerned not only with maintenance of empire communications but also and probably more importantly with the control of the world's largest undeveloped reserve of oil.

When Britain agreed to evacuate Egypt, it was necessary for her to find another site for the strategic naval base formerly located at Alexandria. Palestine appears to have been selected for that purpose. It has the military advantage of location nearer to the Iranian and Arabian oil fields, which are linked to Palestine through a pipe line ending at Haifa.

The new magazine World Report points out that the United States and Great Britain have succeeded in halting, at least for the present, the expansion of Russian influence in this area. To do so, they have been compelled to secure the cooperation of Cairo, Teheran and the states between—most of which are linked in the Arab League. That explains why the Jews get so many honeyed words and so little help in their desire to set up a Jewish state in Palestine.

Oil companies in the United States control 42 per cent of a reserve said to comprise one-third of the world's remaining oil, and British companies 50 per cent. The balance is held by Dutch and French capital. Russian control has only lately been extended over northern Iran, but strikes and political turbulence in the rest of the country indicate that she is still far from satisfied.

All this is of course relative to the new Russian attempts to revise the Montreux convention which gave Turkey control of the Dardanelles. The Dardanelles and the Persian gulf are the two places in the south through which Russia can gain access to the world's oceans, and it appears that economic as well as political considerations have moved the architects of Anglo-American policy to decide that these points must be held at all [illegible] When the search ended Jewish leaders promptly gave British commander a list of [illegible], including ten cameras, watches, fountain pens and jewelry that was missing from homes after the search.

The commander immediately ordered a search of the troops made, and promised another surprise search would be made later.

Equipment unearthed during the search suggested, according to British military officers, that the seaside village may have had some connection with the landing of unauthorized refugees in the vicinity.

The searchers discovered quantities of clothing packed in trunks, sea-going equipment, a long rope ladder, allegedly forged passports and a large number of Royal Air Force rubber ocean dinghies. The last items have been on sale to the public. Of three weapon-training pamphlets found, one in English, was dated 1937 and two were in Hebrew. Other items found included a pair of rubber goggles that could be used by an underwater swimmer and a box of rifle slings.

British troops searching the coastal villages of Caesarea and Sadoth Yam found a buried limpet mine the next day of the type used to blow a hole in the side of the transport Empire Rival.

The mine was spotted out by dogs trained in Germany to detect metal. It was nine inches across but had not yet been filled with explosive.

At his home at Oquaka, Pa., Mr. Rosenwald explained that his organization was founded three years ago to combat the "idea that Jewish people were homeless and required a nation of their own". The organization was formed to show that the ideas of Zionism were not the beliefs of all American Jews, he said.

Claiming 13,000 members, officers of the group included vice-presidents, Rabbi William H. Fineshriber, of Philadelphia; Frederick Florence, Dallas, Tex., banker; and Rabbi Irwin Reichert, of San Francisco; also Ralph Wolf, lawyer, of 993 Park Avenue, New York; David Stern, industrialist, of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. J. Walter Freiberg, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Rabbi Elmer Berger is executive director and the organization maintains offices at 201 East Fifty-seventh Street, New York.

REFUGEES

the dock, many sang and others joked. A Hebrew newspaper man met them and assured them that their camp was pleasant and that they would receive good treatment.

Many young husbands and wives held hands while the small boat brought them to shore. Tears ran down the cheeks of one young woman when she saw the harbor, topped by the graceful spires of the Church of St. George of the Lake, but her husband wiped them away.

On the shore they passed through a thin line of British guards to waiting trucks that drove them to an internment camp near Caraolon. An occasional Bren gun carrier or a single armed British soldier were stationed at points along the route.

The camp to which the Jews were taken is pleasant, with trees providing shade from the hot summer sun. Both British and Jewish reports indicate the internees are not mistreated.

Most of them were young men and young women. There were signs that these young persons had been carefully segregated during the trip from Palestine waters, where their flight from Europe to the Holy Land had been intercepted under the new British policy against immigration.

The government liaison officer, Mr. Spearway, said the government is issuing powdered milk for the children and is sending Hebrew teachers. He said that radios, motion pictures and daily newspapers, including Palestinian publications, have been provided for the detainees.

Charles Passman, Middle East director of the Jewish Distribution Committee, complained that he was refused permission to visit the refugees in the camp.

Passman, in talks with government officials, asked that permission be given for some Palestinian doctors, midwives, nurses and teachers to come to Cyprus. He said, however, that the government was most nervous regarding the suggestion that any Palestinians be permitted to enter the camp.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without passion
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an opinion."

There is more than passing interest in the full-page advertisement which appeared on August 27 in the New York Herald Tribune over the signature of the League For Peace With Justice In Palestine. It offered "10,000.00 cash reward for proof that the funds of the undersigned were, or are, supplied by any Arab State, or by England, and its policies directed by any foreign powers, resulting in the arrest and conviction under the Foreign Agents Registration Act.... This offer is our challenge to the numerous untruths in Congressman Adolph J. Sabath's extension of remarks in the Congressional Record of August 12, 1946, and to any political Zionist perverters of the truth. (Offer limited to accusations duly filed by the Department of Justice as hereinabove set forth, in courts of competent jurisdiction, prior to midnight, September 30, 1946.)"

Under the heading "Do Political Zionists brand as 'anti-Semitic' these recognized authorities", this advertisement, now under examination here, is almost entirely, almost but not quite, made up of quotations in derogation of Zionism from a wide variety of respected men. At least one of them, Jacob H. Schiff, the noted Jewish banker and philanthropist, of New York, has been dead for a good many years. Not that that fact reduces or enhances the value of his viewpoint, but the advertisement fails to note that he is now the late Mr. Schiff, probably because the League fears that readers may consider what he said has no weight now in the light of changed conditions. Anyway, this comparatively small detail reflects on the honesty of those who placed the advertisement, and this column herewith checks up a mark against them for trading on his name.

This advertisement of the League was not able to find anything suitable for quotation from Dr. Chaim Weizmann, called simply "president", since May 8, 1918, when he said: "All fears expressed openly or secretly by the Arabs that they are to be ousted from their present position are due either to a fundamental misconception of Zionist aims or to the malicious activities of our common enemies." Henry Morgenthau, Sr., called "statesman", probably because he was once United States Ambassador to Turkey, heads the list with the largest single quotation beginning, "Zionism is the most stupendous fallacy in Jewish history." At the top of one column there is the by now famous remark of the late President Roosevelt to King Ibn Saud, "Your Majesty will also doubtless recall that during our recent conversation I assured you that I would take no action, in my capacity as Chief of the executive branch of this Government, which might prove hostile to the Arab people." Most of those who are quoted are non-Jews, among them Gandhi, the Hindu leader. There is also a quotation about "the Zionist-led Jewish vote" from the superficial and rather foolish-sounding Palestine editorial in Life Magazine of August 19.

[illegible] part of the advertisement of the League For Peace With Justice In Palestine finishes up with an appeal for two million members by return mail if possible, at a cost of only one dollar. "Individuals of all national origins, of all racial groups and of all religious faiths, or of no religious faith at all, (if you have a sense of justice), are urged to join. Your dollar today may avert a war tomorrow." There is also the information that "Full-size, exact reproductions of this announcement, for distribution among uninformed persons or groups, will be supplied upon request, in required quantities."

It so happens that the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League To Champion Human Rights charged in a recent statement to President Truman that pan-Arabic agencies are conducting a widespread subversive propaganda campaign in the United States and elsewhere, in various ways, including costly advertisements bought with what was originally Lend Lease money. After months of secret investigations the Anti-Nazi League claims that this campaign involves the incitement of religious and racial strife and the dissemination of propaganda of totalitarian hues as part of an effort to achieve certain political objectives in the Near East through secret cooperation with native groups of Nazi-Fascist leanings on this continent and others. The advertisement in the New York Herald Tribune referred to above seems to lend support to the stand of the Anti-Nazi League rather than weaken it.
